| 1) Explain how you were involved in the group.   | I meet with the group inside/outside of class on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. I manage the Ubuntu server we use and the Github repository.  |
| 2) What did you specifically contribute to the group? Not, how did you help someone else.  | I set up accounts for the group to ssh into the Ubuntu server for working on code and created a Perl program (licenseToJson.pl) to convert the license files produced by "scanarchive.pl" into a JSON format. I also wrote a quick bit of code that connects the web upload with the scanarchive.pl program. |
| 3) What would you like me to specifically grade you on because you feel that it is most representative of your work? | The licenseToJson.pl program and the scanarchive.pl program are totally my work. I also provided significant input on a lot of the documentation (the three of us really just sit down and write most of it together in a Google doc).   |
| 4) How did you coordinate your group activities between the various components?  | We meet every Monday/Wednesday/Friday to work on the project/documentation together, and we communicate via e-mail outside of that.  |
| 5) What were your experiences and difficulties with this assignment?   | I am apparently unfit to be an Ubuntu server administrator. We seem to continually run into small problems associated with permissions and such with the server. I also learned just how little I actually knew about using JSON before starting the licenseToJson.pl program.                               |
| 6) What are you going to do differently next assignment to overcome these difficulties?  | I am learning new things constantly about permissions/groups/etc. in Ubuntu. I might simply wipe the whole system and reinstall everything from scratch with the knowledge I have gained so far. I am also much more familiar/comfortable with JSON after writing that script.                               |
